

Kids and pets: video B

A family Sunday Afternoon.

Here are Claude Gazay and her two daughters. Lena, the eldest, is seven and a half years old. The younger one Jane is 6 years old. Two sisters that often play together.

Nathalie: "So tell me about your daughters! The first one, the older...the older one is called Lena."

Claude: "She is well behaved but with a little... a little naughty side so beware! Listen to her and it sounds as if she has been very good but then sometimes all I can hear is that... bit of mischief."

Nathalie: "And how is Jane?"

Claude: "Jane is a little devil! What we call here a thunderbolt/force of nature! She's always running, jumping and talking. She is a real chatterbox."

Nathalie: "... How do they get on?"

Claude: "Very well, very well with lots of squabbling, but they play well together. But if there is another little friend along... then there's that but when they're together it stays on an even keel. One brings the good behaviour and the other the energy."

Nathalie: "What do you do to occupy your daughters?"

Claude: "Well usually school takes up most of their time in the week, because in France we have school until four thirty and with study period even five thirty. So the days are well filled. In the evenings we have homework and on Wednesdays they do sport and on the weekend, those are the days we relax so we go bike riding or for walks in the countryside."

Nathalie: "And do you have any animals at home?"

Claude: "We've had a little cat for the last few months that we baptised Mitsou. Mitsou is a little European cat, a little mongrel cat. He's no particular breed but he is the most beautiful cat in the world!"
