MUSIC DW7 3M1 IN

Then a voice. A woman's voice.

VOICE (VO)

When I was a child my favourite story was about a man who lived forever. But whose eyes were heavy with the weight of all he'd seen.

BLACK SCREEN FADE UP TO:

The night sky. Stars scattered like jewels. We pan down...

VOICE

The man who fell from the stars.

... and the serenity is shattered as an Attack Drone staggers into shot. It's a Heath Robinson, cobbled together with whatever its creator could lay his hands on. Engine parts, bits of wrecked fuselage, even a fire-extinguisher.

10:00:14 ON SCREEN GRAPHIC: WE SEE THROUGH GUNSLINGER'S POV, The Droid. GRAPHIC 'TARGETING'.

The Drone is blasted away and falls forward, onto the dirt with a thud...

... revealing Kahler-Mas, cowering behind it. He looks human aside from the intricate tattoo, like tribal markings, down one side of his face.

10:00:22 GUNSLINGER POV:

KAHLER-MAS

I knew you'd find me eventually.

We've seen only glimpses of the monster Kahler-Mas is facing.
The boots, his shadow across on the ground. A single blue light shining from his eye. And now his gun-arm. Colossal, like Hellboy's arm, but a mass of weapons. Not just one gun, a whole arsenal. Everything from an assassin's rifle to a shotgun. We'll call him The Gunslinger (because that's his name). There is a whir and whine as the weaponry engages. And when he speaks, his voice like iron gears grinding.

Once they were your Gods too.

10:00:34 GUNSLINGER TARGETING GRAPHIC: TERMINATE'

THE GUNSLINGER
Not any more.

Kahler-Mas sighs and nods, resigned to his fate. He turns, kneels and bows his head in prayer, now facing away from the Gunslinger. His eyes are scanning around frantically for a weapon. He spots the gun the Drone was holding, in the dirt in front of him.

Suddenly Kahler-Mas snatches the gun and spins around -

- but the Gunslinger is quicker. Impossibly quick. A blast of laser slams into Kahler-Mas. He lies in a heap. The Gunslinger strides towards him, looms over Kahler-Mas, watching his life ebb away.

KAHLER-MAS
Am I... the last one?

THE GUNSLINGER
There's one more.

He raises his gun to fire again.

The doctor.

We come in on an animal skull on top of a sign, with THE DOCTOR looking at it. The plains of the American desert stretch out behind him. On The Doctors POV - sign says 'Mercy. 80 residents'. Except the '80' has been crossed out, and '81' etched next to it.

The Doctor regards the sign, the alteration. Curious.

DOCTOR
Mercy, 81 residents

Amy is pointing at the ground: A boundary line, made from stones and lengths of wood. An improvised border stretching all the way around the little town.

10:01:49 DIRECTED BY SAUL METZSTEIN

He's striding towards the town gate now. Amy and Rory sigh, step over the line and follow him.

CUT TO:

10:02:23 EXT. MERCY. DAY

Establishing shot of Mercy, Mercy is tiny. Genuinely a one horse town. A saloon, a bank, a Marshall's office, some houses. All but deserted.

CUT TO:

10:02:27 EXT. MERCY. MAIN STREET. DAY.

But as the Doctor, Amy and Rory make their way along the main street, they become aware of faces watching them through the windows. Suspicious, frightened.

Amy and Rory quicken their pace. But the Doctor has stopped.

A lamp post sparks. Cobbled together from wood and iron, with a lamp made from what was clearly once a beer bottle,
but definitely a street lamp.

THE DOCTOR
That's not right.

He's Sonic-ing a street lamp.

RORY
It's a street lamp.

THE DOCTOR
An electric street lamp. About ten years too early.

RORY

It's only a few years out.

THE DOCTOR

That's what you said when you left your phone recharger in Henry

Suddenly, from over their heads, a clunking and grinding sound; gears and cogs protesting. A large clock over the bank is struggling and straining to find the strength to strike. Finally it manages a deep clang. One o'clock.

AMY

Doctor...

And now people are stepping out onto the porches of the shops and houses. Among them, we might concentrate on a little girl, watching the strangers.

THE DOCTOR

(gleeful)

Anachronistic electricity, 'Keep Out' signs, aggressive stares. Has someone been peeking at my Christmas list?

AMY

Doctor...

The townsfolk are staring with undisguised hostility now. Some are advancing forward. The Doctor pulls a toothpick out of his breast pocket and walks on.

SADIE

The Doctor blushes, the persona drops.

THE DOCTOR

"Son". You can stay.

The Preacher - 30s, African American, dressed in dusty black - has got to his feet. The voice of the assembled.

THE PREACHER

Sir, might ah enquire who you is?

THE DOCTOR

Of course. I'm the Doctor, this is Another ten men stand, hands on guns. The atmosphere has darkened even more. Not that the Doctor has noticed.

THE DOCTOR (cont'd)

Oh no need to stand.
(to Amy and Rory)
You see that: Manners.

A whiskery little man has scurried across to the Doctor.

The Doctor certainly wasn't expecting that.

THE DOCTOR
Well, um, (bit personal), it's all you're the aliens. But in this

What does he want? Has he issued some kind of demand?

ISAAC

He says he wants us to give him "the Alien Doctor".

AMY

(to the Doctor)

But that's you. Why would he want to kill you? Unless he's met you.

RORY

And how could he know that we'd be here? We didn't even know we'd be here.

AMY

We were aiming for Mexico. The Doctor was taking us to see the Day of the Dead Festival.

As they talk, the Doctor clocks the electric light hanging from the ceiling

ISAAC

Mexico's 200 miles due south.

Who?

THE DOCTOR

The chap outside said I could be the alien doctor but you said I wasn't. So you already know who it is. Two Alien Doctors! We're like buses!) Resident 81 I presume. So beloved by the townsfolk, he warranted an alteration to the sign. Probably because he rigged up these electrics.

He spins around to face the cell and the sleeping figure.

THE DOCTOR (cont'd)

And I'm guessing he's in here because if half of that same town suddenly wanted to throw me to my death this is where I'd want to be.

They've clearly been standing like that for some time. Amy gently extricates Jex's hand from the Doctor's. They move to the table and sit down.

AMY
Alright...How did you get here?

JEX

THE DOCTOR

Why would I be curious? - it's a mysterious space assassin?
I'm not curious, of course I'm not curious.

AMY

We? I'm coming with you?

Jex backs towards the door, still facing Amy. He reaches behind him and fumbles with the latch.

JEX

It's unlikely the Gunslinger will shoot if I'm with you. As far as I can tell he's programmed to take innocent lives only if absolutely necessary.

AMY

Well, colour me Reassured.

Jex freezes. The barrel of a gun has just been pressed against the back of his head. We follow the gun... to an arm... to Isaac. Rory close behind. Isaac stares, bewildered and furious at the scene of betrayal unfolding before him.

THE DOCTOR
Tell them what you are.

Jex cowers and squirms in his chair, eyes wide with terror like a trapped animal. But then something happens. His features harden, his mouth twists into a sneer.

JEX
What am I? A War Hero.

The change is subtle, but so sweeping it makes the others instinctively take a step back. He shifts in his chair, all the timidity gone, replaced by something hard and dangerous.

ISAAC
OK, somebody want to tell me
what's going on.

THE DOCTOR
The Gunslinger is a cyborg.

ISAAC
A what?

THE DOCTOR
Half man, half machine. A weapon.
Jex built it. He and his team took volunteers, told them they'd been selected for special training.
Then experimented on them, fused
their bodies with weaponry,
programmed them to kill.

ISAAC
Okay, why? Why would you do that doc?

JEX
We'd been at war for nine years. A war that had already decimated half of our planet. Our task was to bring peace. And we did. We built an army that routed the enemy and ended the

The Doctor leans forward so they are nose to nose.

THE DOCTOR

And how many died screaming on the operating table before you had found your 'advantage'?

JEX

War is another world. You cannot apply the politics of peace to what I did, to what any of us did.

The Doctor straightens up. Simmering with fury. It's taking all his self-control not to strike Jex.

RORY

But what happened then? How come you're here?

JEX

When the war ended we had the Cyborgs decommissioned. But one of them must have got its circuitry damaged in battle. It went offline and began hunting down the team that created it, until just two of us were left.
We fled and our ships crashed here.

AMY

But I think we should put aside what he did and find another solution.

Turns to Rory.

AMY

When did we start letting people get executed? Did I miss a memo? Doctor, tell him.

The Doctor is brooding. He looks up at them.

THE DOCTOR

Yes. I don't know. Whatever Amy said.

He starts plodding towards the door.

JEX

Looking at you, Doctor, is like looking into a mirror. Almost. There's rage there, like me. Guilt, like me. Solitude. Everything but the nerve to do what needs to be done. Thank the Gods my people weren't relying on you to save them...

For a moment the Doctor doesn't move, doesn't speak.

THE DOCTOR

Amy tries to race out after them, but Rory steps between her and the door. She stares at him, shocked, sickened.

You're both good men... you just

His eyes close, his body is suddenly heavy in the Doctor's arms. Gently the Doctor lays him on the ground.

The Doctor stands, his fist clenched. He unfolds the fingers, and in his palm is the tin star of the Marshall.

He looks up at the people of Mercy. Mothers clutch their children, husbands hold their wives. They stare at the Doctor, helpless. Amy and Rory. The Preacher, Sadie, Abraham, the little girl.

And he looks at Jex. Standing now, his breathing ragged.

The Doctor reluctantly mirrors Dockery's pose.

THE DOCTOR

Please don't do this.

DOCKERY

Why? Reckon you quicker than me?

THE DOCTOR

Almost certainly not. But this...

violence, it extends it.

They are just a foot or so apart now. The Doctor can see

JEX

You think I'm unaffected by what I

Jex rolls over, regards the Doctor.

JEX (cont'd)

It would be so much simpler if I was

The Doctor stands, walks over to the cell.

THE DOCTOR

Oh I know exactly what you are. And I and chose this as your punishment.

Don't get me wrong, good choice.
Civilised hours, lots of adulation, nice weather. But, BUT, justice doesn't work like that. You don't get

JEX (cont'd)

Jex glances at the desert plain, then back into the town. Salvation verses damnation.

And then the Doctor darts out. He yells at Jex over his shoulder.

THE DOCTOR

Go! Just GO! I can't save them while you're here.

Jex obeys.
